

School's Open

With pen in hand, notebooks ready and new school uniforms, Michael Myers and Amyr Jaward prepare for their first class of the school year. The Newark Boys Chorus School expects almost 20 new students for the 2017-2018 school year. With additional laboratory experiences in the STEM program, a new TechHub for completing presentation projects and plans afoot for a regional trip to Arizona, enthusiasm abounds at the school. This weekend the Concert Chorus participated in the annual Frost Valley camp while the incoming 4th and 5th graders enjoyed an educational boot camp at the school. Last year Frost Valley provided the stage to prepare for the 9/11 Anniversary performance at Shanksville Pennsylvania. This year the rehearsals have begun for the October 25th performance at the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine program with Musica Sacra. (see related article).

Part of the mission of the Newark Boys Chorus School is to develop young men of character. The boot camp experience at the school introduces the underclass students to the rich history of the school and the need to comport properly as young adults. As you visit the school and hear the boys perform at a concert you will understand better the quality of character exhibited by every student.
